

Published based on Brighton - Attractions Not To Miss Out On

Brighton - Attractions Not To Miss Out On

Brighton, England, is just bursting with things to do! Attractions range from walking on the beautiful beaches of Brighton or joining in some beachfront sports to visiting the Royal Pavilion, the summer home of British royalty for many years.

The biggest allure of Brighton is, of course, its legendary beach. It has been voted one of the Top 10 city beach break destinations in the world. Brighton Pier is in the background so that the sun and fun of the beach meld seamlessly with the fun of Brightons funky beachside clubs. Relax on the pebble beach, take a stroll along the strand, have a bite to eat in one of the many cafes and bars or join in some water sports or go sailing. After dark, you'll be able to partake in the action of some of the best night clubs in the UK.

The Royal Pavilion is the jewel in the crown of Brightons many attractions. Built by the architect John Nash in the early nineteenth century, it was the Palace by the Sea of the Prince Regent, George IV. Today it is still one of the most beautiful as well as exotic structures in all of the UK. The furniture and art is magnificent and includes many historical pieces lent to the Royal Pavilion by The Queen. Visit the tearoom that overlooks the reconstructed gardens of the Palace and the Palace Shop.

There are cool, relaxing green spaces within the town of Brighton. There are 98 parks and gardens in Brighton and Hove, including historic Kipling Gardens in Rottingdean. The Gardens were once part of The Elms, the home of Rudyard Kipling from 1897-1902. There is even a wild garden where one can picnic, and herb garden and a croquet lawn. Its only about three miles from the Brighton Pier.

There are 14,000 acres of countryside in and around Brighton. In fact, the area has been awarded National Park status in recognition of the natural beauty of the South Downs. There are walks and trails, bicycling, all sorts of plants and wildlife a place of unequalled beauty to be enjoyed by visitors and locals alike.

If you're visiting the UK, remember that Brighton is one of its most exciting towns. And many of the activities of Brighton are year round so don't think its only a summer place. Look into spending your next holiday in and around Brighton. You won't be disappointed!

Read On : Brighton Hotels

You can also find this article published on Brighton - Attractions Not To Miss Out On, and on the tag pages home, john nash, kipling gardens, Pavilion, Royal, rudyard kipling.