Spains Air Traffic Control Threaten To Strike

once again it seems that there are problems in the airline industry with more airline staff striking and this time it seems to be the Spanish air traffic control staff, it would seem that when it comes to this industry there is always something going wrong and I am not sure they are actually getting any less money than I am so what is the issue.

These people are in the line of work that if they do strike it is going to cause some real problems, problems that cannot be ignored, if I went on strike I am sure no one would really care at all and this is a pain for the people that are wanting to go away because it seems they are really going to be upsetting a lot of families!

The Real Point Of The Strike?

Like with all of the strikes in this kind of sector it is over money and this is really annoying because the chiefs of the company really couldn't care less about these people and the only thing the people are doing is upsetting everyone else.

On the other hand I can understand where they are coming from, if they are not getting paid enough money for what they are doing then what choice do they actually have? if they have tried every other tactic then what else are they supposed to do, you cannot just live on hardly any wages when you have a job like that.

The main issue is for the people looking to go on a Villa holidays Spain because they might not get to go on their vacation. The strike itself is unconfirmed on what date it will be happening but rumours have it that it will be taking place on the 18th of August for around three days!

Look out for those Spanish villa images still because the chances are something will happen to fix this whole mess up and you will still have your trip away!
